16 YEARS AS AUDITOR—Marvene Rhoades ended 16 years of service Friday as the Pickaway County Auditor when courthouse employees honored her with a "farewell party". Mrs. Rhoades decided in December, 1973 to retire and not seek re-election of the county office. Public service was nothing new to Mrs. Rhoades as she served 22 years as the Jackson Twp. School clerk and 11 years on that school's Board of Education. She served the capacity of auditor from 1958 until Friday. Mrs. Margaret Remy, auditor elect and endorsed by Mrs. Rhoades, was appointed to complete the week's term with swearing-in ceremonies scheduled for March 10.

Bicentennial Celebration Opens

WASHINGTON (AP) — Today marks the start of an official 22-month celebration of the 200th birthday of the American republic.

Congress chose the date arbitrarily; no major historic event occurred on March 1, 1775. April 19 is the 200th anniversary of the battles of Lexington and Concord — generally regarded as the start of the American Revolution. July 4, 1776, is usually regarded as the nation's birthday since the Declaration of Independence was signed on that date.

There are hundreds of anniversaries coming up, and many of them will be marked by pageantry, parades and patriotic speeches.

Few of them will have federal financial support, although thousands have been endorsed by the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration as being worthy of corporation and private backing.

A predecessor commission decided against choosing any one city as the focus of bicentennial activities, but said there should be major observances in Boston, Philadelphia, Washington and Miami.

The bicentennial administration has a $10 million yearly budget through 1976, but only for administration, grants to states and for planning.

Some other federal agencies have made grants for bicentennial projects. The National Endowment for the Humanities is helping support publication of histories of each of the 50 states and the District of Columbia. The National Endowment for the Arts is helping commission new musical works and a variety of other bicentennial-related projects.

The National Park Service has made extensive improvements at national historic sites related to the Revolution.

The Smithsonian Institution is planning a score of events, including a summer-long Festival of American Folklife on the national Mall.

But most major projects are dependent on corporate and other private support. The Bicentennial Administration says it has a list of worthy projects that will require $50 million.

One that has received $4 million from four corporations may be seen by more persons than any other single bicentennial effort. It is the Freedom Train, which will carry historic memorabilia to all 48 contiguous states starting next month and ending at Christmas-time 1976. It will charge admission for the 40-50 million visitors sponsors anticipate.

Radio and television plan a host of specials and series geared to the Revolution. Resident theaters will offer all-American programs. Orchestras will play American works, old and new. Books and pamphlets will pour from the presses. Dances will be choreographed to American themes. Battles will be re-enacted. Buildings will be restored.

Columbus Has Curse On Lottery

President Ford to the Congress on Feb. 3, calls for expenditures of $349.4 billion. Officials at the briefing Friday said action by Congress is likely to push that figure higher.

HEW has been allotted $118.4 billion, he said, an increase of 8.5 per cent over fiscal year 1975, which ends June 30.

But he noted that HEW has gotten annual increases of about 15 per cent a year in the past, so the proposed increase "still is significantly less than that (annual) increase has been in recent years."

He said Social Security, the largest chunk of the HEW budget, is going up, which will result in trimming the health and education portions of the budget.

Hill-Burton hospital construction funds are being cut off, since urban areas have too many hospital beds, he said, and community health, community service and mental health programs will be trimmed.

Head Start preschool funding will increase some, but most education programs will be trimmed. The impact of that is partly offset by a declining school population, he said.

"We really don't do all that we think we would like to do," Friedman said. "Human needs are infinite, but the resources we have to meet those needs are very much finite."

Tax Refund Tiff Continues

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State Tax Commissioner Gerald Collins said Friday he has instructed his staff to deny auditor's examiners access to state income tax returns which are not related to pending refunds.

Collins said he had learned the examiners were examining returns which were unrelated to refund claims.

In a letter to Auditor Thomas Ferguson, Collins said he was withholding the unrelated returns from the examiners "inasmuch as I am responsible for maintaining the confidentiality of the personal income tax records."

Collins earlier agreed to allow the examiners to make a spot check of refund claims to verify the legality of claims and vouchers.

The commissioner told Ferguson Friday any examination beyond that scope must be requested in writing, with the purpose and procedure detailed.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Once, a chance. Twice, perhaps a coincidence. But thrice and gamblers here whisper about a curse.

Three times a Columbus man won $300,000 in the new Ohio lottery, and each time the winner wound up afoul of the law.

The lottery's first Buckeye 300 winner William C. Culver Jr., a 55-year-old laborer, relaxed after being assured $15,000 a year for the next two decades.

But when his former wife, Tessie Culver Hall, found out about the new fortune, she sued him for 16 years of back child support. She won one of the year's money.

Two weeks ago, printer Cassius C. Yoakum, 51, held the lucky numbers. The day after he received the first $15,000 check he was arrested for driving while intoxicated and being left of center, municipal court records show. His case is pending.

Then Joseph Edward Brown, 37, won.

He was bound for prison Friday after being sentenced in Franklin County Common Pleas Court to 3-15 years for burglary and vandalism.

He pleaded guilty to the charges Nov. 7 of stealing a stereo, clock radio, television and some other items valued at $700.

Compromise Near On Oil Tariff

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford may act early next week to delay his new oil tariffs in order to provide time to develop a White House-Congress joint blueprint for fighting the recession and reducing oil imports.

After meeting with Democratic leaders on Friday, the President said he might delay his planned tariffs. Press Secretary Ron Nessen said that if Ford takes such action it will come on Monday or Tuesday.

It was the first indication that Ford might back down on the oil tariff, the first step of his energy program, in an effort to work out a compromise with Congress.

Ford described the energy-economy program prepared by a Senate-House task force as a "Carefully thought-out" effort that "can possibly be meshed with ours."

Ford's program aims to reduce energy consumption by sharply raising the price of fuel through new taxes and removal of federal price controls.

In contrast, the Democrats are emphasizing the need to fight recession, even if that requires a delay in reducing reliance on imported oil.

As the first step of his program, Ford imposed a $3-per-barrel special tax on imported oil. The first $1 went into effect Feb. 1, the second was due today, and the third $1 is scheduled to become effective on April 1.

In opening the possibility of delaying the second and third increments, Ford said he could take such action retroactively.

Meanwhile, in other economic developments:

—The federal government said it will reduce from 8.5 per cent to 8 per cent the maximum interest that can be charged on a federally-insured home mortgage.

—Government statistics showed that an additional 700,000 persons were on the rolls of the food stamp program in January, a slowdown in the rate of growth from the previous month.

—The Agriculture Department said prices farmers received for raw agricultural products dropped 4 per cent from Jan. 15 to Feb. 15. It was the fourth consecutive monthly decline.

—Prime rate cuts at the nation's two largest banks kept the stock market ahead. The Dow Jones industrial average climbed 7.90 but wound up with a loss of 10.72 for the week. San Francisco's Bank of America, the nation's largest bank, and No. 2 First National City Bank of New York both dropped the prime one-quarter point to 8 1/4 per cent, a move followed by several other banks.

—Ford Motor Co. said 1,375 workers now on indefinite layoff will be back on the job next week. The auto maker said it will have 16,700 employees on temporary furlough, 15,025 fewer than this week.

—Shell Oil Co. increased its gasoline prices by two cents a gallon, blaming the action partially on a federal regulation aimed at equalizing crude oil costs among refiners.

Before Friday's meeting with Senate and House leaders, Ford and his spokesmen had insisted that there was no way to discuss an energy compromise with Congress until the Democrats came up with their own program.

The Democrats have developed their own program, and both houses of Congress have voted to block for 90 days the $3 import tariff. Ford has promised to veto that delay.

Ford said the main purpose of the tariff was to pressure Congress into acting on the remainder of his energy program. Democrats say the tariffs, which would raise the price of all fuels but especially gasoline, would damage the fight against recession and set off a new round of inflation.

Ford is expected to consider whether to delay the second and third portions of the import tariff as he spends the weekend at his Camp David, Md., retreat.

In his meeting with the Democratic leaders Ford had nothing to say against the $21.3-billion tax cut voted by the House, Nessen said.

However, the President strongly objected to a feature, added on the House floor, that repeals the oil depletion allowance, the press secretary said.

Nessen said Ford fears a Senate battle over the depletion allowance could delay enactment of the anti-recession tax cut.

The Senate Finance Committee starts work on the tax cut on Tuesday.

Floor Set On Bond Issues

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Democratic legislative leaders have set floor votes for Monday on their own versions of Gov. James A. Rhodes' transportation and housing plans as well as a controversial $2.5 billion bond issue for cities.

The four resolutions need legislative approval by Wednesday to qualify for the June 3 primary ballot.

Major surgery had been predicted for the wide-ranging bond issue because of Democratic resistance to a sevenths of a cent increase in the state sales tax proposed by Rhodes to finance the plan.

However, the issue flew out of committee unexpectedly late Thursday night with only minor changes and the sales tax hike untouched.

House Speaker Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-89 New Boston, said the bill was moved after indications that "if the funding of the proposal is changed in any way to an income tax... the governor would oppose it."

Democratic legislators were known to be considering amendments to replace the sales tax increase with an adjustment in the state income tax, probably effecting upper brackets.

While the city bond issue was given some hope for passage, the Republican governor's ambitious plan to attract industry to Ohio with massive tax breaks appeared to be dying a slow death in the Senate Ways and Means Committee.

Majority Democrats insist passage of all four proposed constitutional amendments is conceivable within the three-day time frame, assuming Republicans agree to suspension of procedural rules.

The tax abatement plan languished in the Senate Ways and Means Committee over the weekend after only four members — one short of a quorum — showed up for a Friday meeting to consider the bill.

With three Democrats and one Republican at the committee table, Chairwoman Margene Valiquette, D-10, said the bill was "dead."

He was bound for prison Friday after being sentenced in Franklin County Common Pleas Court to 3-15 years for burglary and vandalism.

He pleaded guilty to the charges Nov. 7 of stealing a stereo, clock radio, television and some other items valued at $700.

ROUND TOWN

A NEW face is greeting patrons at the Laurelville Postoffice these days. The close of business on Friday marked retirement time for Postmaster Florence M. Pontious.

Mrs. Pontious took over her duties as acting postmaster on May 26, 1961, later receiving her appointment as postmaster. She had also worked as a clerk in the office several years before that.

On Thursday morning her co-workers in the office, clerks Mrs. Jerry Fetherolf and Mrs. Amy Karr, route carriers, Don Kempton and Robert Brandt, sub-carrier Mrs. Rose Norton, and retired clerk Celesta Hoy presented Mrs. Pontious with a gift of jewelry. Taking over as officer in charge at the postoffice is Paul J. White of near Circleville. Mr. White comes from the Circleville Postoffice with 21 years experience. For the past seven years he has been assistant postmaster in that office.

11 Toledo, scheduled another meeting for Monday afternoon while blaming GOP sponsors for the delay.

A subcommittee has already scaled down the 30-year proposed tax moratorium for manufacturers to a five to 20 year range and said the legislature should decide what industries were eligible.

However, even if the revised resolution escapes the committee Senate President Pro Tem Oliver

Ocasek, D-27 Akron, has predicted it will not pass the floor by Wednesday.

Ocasek has also vowed to lead the fight against any sales tax increase, if and when the city bond proposal reached the Senate.

Democratic legislators give the best chance for eventual passage to the housing program to permit the state to issue mortgage revenue bonds, and the transportation plan, cut in committee from $1.64 billion to $1 billion.

U.S. Consul Slain By Terror Group In Argentina

CORDOBA, Argentina (AP) — Leftist Peronists who killed honorary U.S. Consul John Patrick Egan said he was their target because he represented "Yankee interests."

In a communique issued after Egan was murdered Friday evening, the Montoneros said they wanted to strike a blow against the government which they said was handing Argentina over to the Americans.

During the 51 hours Egan was held, Argentine officials made no response to guerrilla demands but mounted the biggest dragnet in the country's history.

The guerrillas set a 7 p.m. deadline for the government to prove that four missing companions were alive.

At 10 p.m., Egan's bloodied body was thrown out of a car on a dirt road two miles from this industrial city 450 miles west of Buenos Aires. An anonymous caller told newsmen where to find his body.

The body was draped in a Montonero banner and was in the clothes he wore when he was abducted on Wednesday. A note on the body said: "Montoneros. Peron or death. Until the victory, my general."

Egan, 62, a native of Perma, Mont., was a Kaiser Industries executive here from 1955 until his retirement in 1968. He was named a consular agent in September 1973.

The last American killed in Argentina was Ford manager John A. Swint, shot on Thanksgiving Day 1973.

U.S. Ambassador Robert Hill called Egan's wife to express his regrets and called the killing a "hard test" for the Argentine government.

Neither the United States nor Argentina has agreed to ransom demands in kidnappings. Egan's official title was consular agent, and he did not have diplomatic status.

It was understood that the embassy was informed earlier Friday that authorities would not comply in Egan's case, and anyway, did not have the four missing guerrillas in custody.

Egan was among four others who died from apparent politically connected violence Friday. Three policemen were shot to death in a Buenos Aires ambush by unidentified terrorists. A conscript soldier in Tucuman was blown to bits by a terrorist bomb.

Cordoba, Argentina's second largest city, is a center of guerrilla violence and labor activism.

Last April, U.S. Information Service official Alfred Laun was shot and kidnapped by guerrillas in Cordoba. After 15 hours, he was released and taken to a hospital.

Picketing Contempt Case Heard

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) Eighty union pickets were subpoenaed to contempt hearings today by Common Pleas Court Judge Fred B. Cramer in the continuing showdown between the AFL-CIO and the City of Lebanon.

Union attorneys, meanwhile filed a $2.8 million damage suit against the city and challenged the constitutionality of Ohio's Ferguson Act forbidding strikes by public employees.

Lebanon police, who handed out 80 citations to picketers in the business district the last two Saturdays were scheduled to be out in force today.

Cramer three weeks ago barred mass picketing as illegal "secondary boycott" in support of 18 fired city workers.

Union officials last week lost a suit to take the injunction case to U.S. District Court in Cincinnati.

The latest federal action, filed in Cincinnati Friday, challenged the Ferguson Act saying it violated the First Amendment denying freedom of speech and association.

The action also challenged part of the Lebanon City Charter which bans city council from dealing directly with employees except through the city manager.

Weather

Partly cloudy today, high, mid 30s. Low tonight, mid 20s. Mostly sunny and cold Sunday, high, mid 30s. Probability of precipitation, 20 per cent today and 10 per cent tonight and tomorrow. Temperatures Friday were: high, 50; low, 24.

Tough Fight Seen For Federal Funds

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio governmental units seeking federal aid will face stiffer competition in the future because of a change in the way such aid is granted, a federal official said Friday.

Richard E. Friedman of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, said Ohio projects will compete with other projects nationwide rather than trying for part of a state allocation.

"This is the first year we will be changing our traditional way of distributing dollars," Friedman said at a briefing for state and local Ohio officials on the proposed 1976 federal budget.

He said, for example, that Ohio and other Midwest states may lose some emergency supplemental school aid to school districts in the South which need money for desegregation costs.

Friedman, who is HEW regional director based in Chicago, said he thinks his department will be able to maintain about the present level of programs, but will not be expanding. The federal budget, presented by President Ford to the Congress on Feb. 3, calls for expenditures of $349.4 billion. Officials at the briefing Friday said action by Congress is likely to push that figure higher.

The action also challenged part of the Lebanon City Charter which bans city council from dealing directly with employees except through the city manager.

Fertilize Lawns After Soil Warms

By GEORGE HAMRICK

When should lawns be fertilized in Ohio?

According to Dave Martin, Extension Agronomist at The Ohio State University, lawns may be fertilized in Ohio from the time the soil warms up in the spring to about one month before growth stops in the fall, with the exception of hot, dry summer months. The time period, then, is about April 1 to October 1, depending on your North to South location, Martin says.

During these months the homeowner may wish to make one, two, three or four applications, depending on the total amount to be applied and the quality of grass desired, he says.

The best way to determine the amount of fertilizer to use is by a soil test. Soil tests are inexpensive and indicate the nutrient status of a particular soil. Recommendations based on test results insure adequate nutrient levels and at the same time avoid excessive and wasteful applications. Soil testing kits and instructions are available from the Pickaway County Cooperative Extension Service Office, at 137 W. Franklin Street, in Circleville.

Where a lawn is growing on a good, fertile soil, relatively small amounts of phosphorus and potassium are needed on an annual basis. One fertilization per year of these nutrients should be sufficient and can be applied spring or fall. Martin says nitrogen is of greater concern, though. The nitrogen rate will vary with the species, management system, intended use of the area, and quality level desired. The average lawn in Ohio requires about two to four pounds of actual nitrogen per 1000 square feet. This amount should be divided among three applications - one or two in the spring and a third in the fall.

Most specialty lawn fertilizers, used according to directions, are satisfactory for turf use. Calculated application rates listed on the fertilizer bag usually are satisfactory for the average lawn. However, there are some differences in the types of materials marketed relatively to being immediately available or slowly available (but for longer periods of time). Most turf fertilizers have both forms of nitrogen in combination.

Avoid damaging your lawn by nitrogen fertilization. A light foliage burn is unsightly but does no permanent damage. Severe burning can kill the grass. Here are Martin's suggestions for safe use of fertilizers. (1) Spread fertilizers evenly, (2) do not overlap or spill fertilizer on the turf, (3) apply when the foliage is dry, (4) apply no more than 1.5 pounds actual nitrogen per 1000 square feet per application, (5) use of granulated or pelleted materials are not as likely to burn as pulverized materials, (6) water immediately after application, and (7) use fertilizers that have at least some insoluble organic nitrogen.

Fertilizer-pesticide combinations are very advantageous, Martin says. However, several problems are associated with them. First, they should be used only when the pest is a problem. To continue to use them throughout the growing season is not only wasteful and expensive but also may be a potential source of pollution. Also a problem is the timing of application of such fertilizer combinations. The time when the pest is a problem may not be the best time to apply nitrogen fertilizer.

For more detailed information on lawn fertilization, get copies of bulletin 271, Your Lawn, and L-187, Control of Turfgrass Pests, both available at the County Extension Office.

Drainage Limits Time In Field

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

The time available to work in the field is limited by soil drainage, weather, and management controlled factors. Time is particularly important in the spring, because late planting usually reduces yields. For corn the reduction in yield is about two bushels per acre per day after the optimum planting period and for soybeans the reduction in yields is about one-third bushel per acre per day after the optimum planting date.

The time available to plow, till, or plant on poorly drained soils during May in Ohio is usually from 10 to 40 per cent of the calendar days. If May is a high rainfall month, like the worst year in a 20 year period, farmers will likely have only 3 days in the field. If there is average weather they can expect 12 days in the field on poorly drained soils.

The time available for field work on moderately well drained soils or poorly drained soils with recommended surface or subsurface drainage is usually from 20 to 45 per cent of the calendar days in May. If May is a high rainfall month, like the worst year in a 20 year period, farmers will likely have 6 days in the field. If there is average weather they can expect 14 days in the field on moderately well drained soils.

On well drained soils there is more time available for field work. In May there are 8 calendar days available during the worst weather year and 15 days available during the average weather year.

Farmers with poorly drained soils and a shortage of time in the field should consider making drainage improvements before next year. The value of additional time in the field can be added to the value of the usual yield increase obtained from improved drainage. Drainage improvements can add two to three days in the field each month in the spring.

Gardening on your Mind?

Not much you can do with the ground frozen and the last spring frost weeks away, but you can be collecting the supplies you need to start your own plants.

First off, buy the seed you'll be planting this year. Plan your needs before buying, as most seed may drop in germination when held over to the following year. Too, better get a few bags of fertilizer ready.

If you want to start a few plants such as tomatoes, cantalopes, etc., get some peat pots and have them on hand. Most plants should be started six to eight weeks before you expect to put them in the garden.

You'll need flats or other type containers in which to set the peat pots for watering and growing the plants. Get some sterilized soil and planting media or sterilize your own. This will insure healthy plants to go in your garden. Labels are needed, too, if you want to keep up with varieties, maturity dates, etc. These can be purchased or made at home. Get the kids to save popsicle sticks.

Strawberry Plants

Since planting of strawberries is best in early spring, order your plants now. Most suppliers will ship them at the best time for you to receive them for proper planting. However, telling the supplier about when you expect to plant is not a bad idea. Late March or early April is the recommended time in Ohio, or as soon as the soil can be prepared.

Recommended varieties for Ohio include Cyclone, early season; Pocahontas, early to mid-season; Raritan, mid-season; Robinson, late, Marlate, very late; and Vesper, very late.

From time to time new strawberry sorts become available through nursery catalogues. These new ones get named because they were found to be superior to varieties normally grown in the area where they were produced. They may or may not be superior under Ohio conditions, so avoid the new sorts, except on a limited basis, until their merit under Ohio conditions can be determined.

Growers should shift to superior new varieties as soon as their merits have been clearly established. Shifting varieties simply to try something new can be costly and disappointing.

Out of the vast number of project areas, approximately 47 of them are home economics related. Gone are the days of strictly cooking and sewing projects — today, home economics 4-H work is alive and creative! All project areas are designed to improve the quality of family living. Finance projects teach 4-H'ers how to manage their money and health projects, teach the principles of first aid and home nursing. Specific family life projects deal with child care and babysitting, personality development and community leadership. Various home improvement projects include home management, refinishing furniture, creative arts (this is opened... you can do practically anything and everything!) and several others.

Nutrition projects all teach proper nutrition and food preparation techniques, and do they ever vary! There is a breads project, one concerned with foreign foods, quick meals, food preservation, and the list continues. Younger members can even "Do Your Own Thing With Food." Our new Extension homemakers club in Ashville has begun with alot of plans and enthusiasm. The gals vary widely in interests and ages, but pooling varied talents makes for fun and learning. This club meets from 9:30 a.m., to 2:30 p.m., and calls itself "Country Kitchen Homemakers." Anyone interested in joining this club, or visiting, should contact president Mary Masters at 983-2196.

Several weeks ago I devoted this column to the flammable fabrics situation. Presently, all children's sleepwear up to and including sizes 6x must be flame retardant. Effective this May, all sized 7-14 sleepwear must also be flame retardant. Last week at an agents' update, we were told that speculations are being made concerning the possibility of making adult loungewear flame retardant. Some experts in consumer protection are also mentioning rugs, draperies, mattresses and upholstery fabrics as target areas for flame retardant laws.

The homemaker's dollar, variety of selection, care qualities, and safety will be affected by such laws. Flame retardant fabrics do not wear as well, require special detergents and laundering, are much more limited in variety, are more expensive, and less comfortable. It must be remembered that these fabrics only retard flames, they do not provide us with safety in our homes. The homemaker should be thinking now, before the laws are passed or proposed, about whether she is willing to make all these concessions to the laws of flame retardancy in all these products. Then she could jot a note to her congressman about her opinion, so that her opinion can be reflected when he votes on future laws.

Incidentally, if you have looked for 100 per cent cotton knit sleepers for children, it is no longer made into these products because so far it cannot meet federal flame retardant specifications.

Watch for a new all polyester pantyhose on the market. It's advertised to resist snags and runs, but one fashion paper also describes them as "crisp." Another pantyhose development is a biconstituent fiber in which the thread is made of half one fiber and half another. Only one-half of the yarn picks up the dye, giving it a very sheer look. One available now is Monville, a support pantyhose.

As you purchase fabrics for spring sewing, are you getting a permanent, woven laundry label to sew into the garment you make? Understand that stores legally must be giving out these permanent care labels to you with fabric lengths. You home sewers have lots of company. Last year 45 million home sewers spent three billion on patterns, notions and fabrics for 195 million garments. Let's see that's almost $17 a garment.

Our Extension Home Council meets at the Calvary United Methodist Church this Monday at 1:00 p.m. New programs will be discussed, and new officers elected.

Immediately following Home Council (2 p.m.) will be an Extension lesson titled "Land Use and Laws for Ladies," open to anyone interested. Teaching guides will be available for these who want to carry the information back to club or group members, Extension or otherwise.

Boy, I really started something with that sour dough starter comment last week! We've sent out more sour dough directions! Fertilize Lawns After Soil Warms

By GEORGE HAMRICK

When should lawns be fertilized in Ohio?

According to Dave Martin, Extension Agronomist at The Ohio State University, lawns may be fertilized in Ohio from the time the soil warms up in the spring to about one month before growth stops in the fall, with the exception of hot, dry summer months. The time period, then, is about April 1 to October 1, depending on your North to South location, Martin says.

During these months the homeowner may wish to make one, two, three or four applications, depending on the total amount to be applied and the quality of grass desired, he says.

The best way to determine the amount of fertilizer to use is by a soil test. Soil tests are inexpensive and indicate the nutrient status of a particular soil. Recommendations based on test results insure adequate nutrient levels and at the same time avoid excessive and wasteful applications. Soil testing kits and instructions are available from the Pickaway County Cooperative Extension Service Office, at 137 W. Franklin Street, in Circleville.

Where a lawn is growing on a good, fertile soil, relatively small amounts of phosphorus and potassium are needed on an annual basis. One fertilization per year of these nutrients should be sufficient and can be applied spring or fall. Martin says nitrogen is of greater concern, though. Fertilizer-pesticide combinations are very advantageous, Martin says. However, several problems are associated with them. First, they should be used only when the pest is a problem. To continue to use them throughout the growing season is not only wasteful and expensive but also may be a potential source of pollution. Also a problem is the timing of application of such fertilizer combinations. The time when the pest is a problem may not be the best time to apply nitrogen fertilizer.

OSU Senior Does Student Teaching

By DEBBIE DAWS

Doug Leith, a student teacher in the vocational agriculture department of Teays Valley, is presently attending Ohio State University. He is in his fourth year of college and plans to get his bachelor of science degree in June. Before attending OSU he attended Rio Grande College on a basketball and track grant. He chose OSU because he wants to get into the agricultural field and enter Army ROTC.

Leith's immediate plans for after graduation are not definite. He is debating about a job he has been offered as a farm manager for an organization in Minnesota that is planning a bi-centennial celebration. He added, "I eventually want to make farming my career on a farm of my own."

When asked why he chose Teays Valley for his student teaching his reply was, "Agriculture instructors don't get to pick a particular school in which to student teach. We are able to pick the vicinity in which we would like to be located."

Leith is now living in Lancaster, but he also farms with his father in Pleasantville.

He enjoys Teays Valley because it is like the high school from which he graduated from. He feels there are not very many good rural schools left in the state.

STUDENT TEACHER DOUG LEITH

"Teays Valley students do not realize some of the blessings they have as compared to urban and schools located close to huge cities. I like Teays Valley because most of the people here are my kind of people, farm people!"

This year Teays Valley has a new club, the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. Advisors for the group are Bill Glitt, Lowell Rader, Coach Richard Kidwell, and Coach Roger Patterson. They meet every Tuesday.

When asked why sportsmen need Christianity, FCA Chapter Captain Bill Breon replied, "It's the same reason why anyone should have Christ. I feel that it makes a better athlete in the area of sportsmanship, attitude, and overall performance."

He emphasized that the only requirements to join are to be an athlete and a Christian. The reason this is the first year Teays Valley has had an FCA Chapter is because, "There was never the real desire to have one, although there was plenty of potential."

Meetings are usually opened with a prayer, followed by old and new business, personal testimony and witnessing. Devotions are followed by films, tapes, records, or guest speakers. Some of the guest speakers the FCA has hosted are Pastor Hohman, of the Faith Baptist Church in Commercial Point; Terry Little, a teacher and a Sunday School leader at the Faith Baptist Church; and Tom Smith, a Bible teacher at Ohio State University. The public is welcome to attend all FCA meetings.

When asked how Christ has helped him, Bill replied, "First of all, He's given me the ability to compete in sports. He's given me the desire to excel in athletics for the purpose of witnessing for Christ. I'm able to accept defeat because I realize it will make me better in the long run."

The FCA's future goal is to send a young member to one of the national conventions, a camp week where they meet professional athletes, such as Rex Kern and Tommy Bell. They go through a week of vigorous athletics accompanied by intense Bible Study.

Bill's advice to young athletes is, "Athletics will help you physically and mentally, but the FCA will add another realm to your being. That is the spiritual realm."

Ohio Employment Total Declines

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Total employment in Ohio dropped 2.9 per cent from December to January.

The Ohio Bureau of Employment Services reported 4,335,000 employed Ohioans in January out of a total civilian labor force of 4,713,000. In December, 4,463,000 Ohioans were employed out of 4,786,000 potential workers.

The unemployment rate rose from 6.7 per cent in December to 8 per cent in January, OBES said.

Helen Cookson Is 22-Year Veteran Statistician At TV

By SUZI HELSEL

Mrs. Helen Cookson continues to act as a basketball statistician after 22 years. She started keeping score in 1952 at Walnut Township High School when there were 11 county high schools.

"The first game I scored was a home game so that meant I was the official scorer, and I was worried," she said. The game was against Darby Township.

Ed Baughn, whose help she deeply appreciated, was the visiting score keeper and he assisted Mrs. Cookson in keeping score.

"My family has always liked basketball." Her mother played on Leesburg championship girls' basketball. Her father coached junior high and girls' basketball teams for several years, and kept score for tournaments for two years.

Mrs. Cookson feels T.V. had a very good team this year. "You don't just win the Metropolitan League with luck, it takes a lot of hard work and determination on the part of the boys and the coach. The boys displayed good sportsmanship and were a team of which the school can be proud."

MRS. HELEN COOKSON

One of Mrs. Cookson's highlights during the past years was in 1960 when Coach Bob Hoover played in the regional tournament. A girl came to her door and said Mr. Mahffey wanted to see her. She worried that she might have done something wrong, but he wanted her to chaperone the cheerleaders at Troy that weekend.

They stayed in a motel and played at the Hobart Arena. The team won their first game over Trenton on Friday when Hoover made the winning points in the last few seconds of the game for a victory of 68-66 only to lose the next night to Salem Local.

"Every year I think maybe I should retire from keeping score, but since my husband and I do enjoy basketball so much, I will probably continue to score as long as the coaches want me to," Mrs. Cookson commented.

We can help them go to college

At the Federal Land Bank Association, we think of loans for education as an investment in the future of Rural America. So if you've got a son or daughter who is thinking of further education after high school, we'd like to talk to you. We understand this expense and the kind of long-term credit a farmer needs to afford it. At your nearby Land Bank Association you'll find competitive interest rates with no penalty for early payments.

Taxes Main Burden

One hindrance Americans do not need during a time of inflationary strain is higher taxes. Last year, along with all the other rising prices for products and services, taxes went up faster than inflation. This is the startling conclusion of a congressional joint economic committee.

The reason is that the progressive features of federal and some state income tax structures in the U.S. collided with the push for wage increases to overcome inflation. What happened is a clear example of the fact that no one wins when inflation gets out of hand.

Wage increases in many industries in 1974 were the result of record settlements. But for many families, higher incomes in inflated dollars meant lower living standards than in 1973 — and higher tax rates.

To illustrate, the committee found that an average middle income family with an income of $12,626 in 1973 needed an income of $14,466 — or $1,840 more — last year "simply to maintain its 1973 living standard." If that mythical family achieved an elevated income of $14,466 in 1974, it found its combined federal, state and local income taxes higher by more than 25 per cent — or $426 — because of higher tax brackets.

Social Security taxes for that same family increased by nearly 22 per cent last year, eroding still further its purchasing power. There are economists who continue to insist that high inflation is at best only a secondary worry. Every detailed analysis which appears on the effects of inflation on the American living standard demonstrates anew how misleading are such opinions.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

A new technique is now being used to screen out people who are thought to be high risk candidates for strokes.

Dr. David N. Cohen and Dr. Richard Wangelin, of the Cleveland Clinic Foundation, have devised a test which quickly shows interference with the blood flow through the carotid artery in the neck.

By gently compressing this artery, and measuring the pressure changes within the eyeball, they are able to determine those people who have a serious obstruction to the blood flow in the carotid artery.

This test, in addition to those already available, may lead to the earlier detection of the narrowing of the carotid artery which can be responsible for stroke.

Dr. Julian A. Waller, of the University of Vermont, believes that "automobile drivers who smoke seem more likely to die in auto accidents than non-smokers."

By studying the blood of highway fatalities he came to the conclusion that people who drink alcohol and smoke tobacco "have a three times greater risk of dying in a traffic accident than nonsmokers who do not drink."

His other statistics, gleaned from his studies, are more complicated. But what is clearly apparent is that gasoline, alcohol and tobacco do not mix.

For years it has been suspected that people born with special and unusual creases in the ear lobes may be greater candidates for heart disease.

Serious students of medicine have noted this unusual finding.

Recently, a team of doctors at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., led by Dr. Jack J. Sternlieb, released the statement that "it would seem that there is a relationship between the presence of ear creases and the evidence of the presence or absence of coronary artery disease."

I know that my readers will be examining their ear lobes now for creases. This should not be a source of concern because the specific type of crease that the doctors refer to is unusual and infrequent.

Police! Puhlease!

ON THE LINE
By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK — A Filipino priest visiting Times Square saw a man lying on the sidewalk. Callous passers-by stepped around the prostrate figure, as happens so often in Fun City, but the priest knelt down beside him compassionately. The man appeared to be drunk and ill.

The priest wondered how to go about calling on the N.Y. police for help. He didn't have to. The police called on him. The arrested him, charged him with trying to steal the man's wallet, jailed him and subjected him to a misdemeanor trial.

The "drunk" was a policeman, a decoy.

In Los Angeles, an advertisement appeared in a newspaper reading "Sexy hostesses needed for gambling junkies. Entails foreign travel. Expenses paid." Forty-five women, including housewives and school teachers looking for needed income, applied. They were arrested as they arrived at the announced employment office, and charged with being prostitutes.

The police had planted the ad.

New York Criminal Court Judge John T. Brickley threw out the case against the Filipino Samaritan, who is a prison chaplain in his native land, and castigated the vicious entrapment system that has become more and more a tool of law enforcement officers. "This man has devoted an entire life to people and the police portray him as a cheap thief," Judge Brickley said angrily from his bench.

In Los Angeles, the city attorney refused to prosecute the 45 women. Police Chief Ed Davis, sounding like some of the early Watergate characters, blamed the release of the entrapped women on "adverse publicity by the news media."

If possible, the baiting is worse among narcotics agents. Gov. Hugh Carey is looking into the case of a 22-year-old boy who has been sentenced to life imprisonment at horror-soaked Attica for arranging to deliver to a casual acquaintance, who had relentlessly importuned him, a half an ounce of cocaine. The "friend," a Narc in disguise, immediately arrested the kid. The young man, engaged to be married in June, had never had so much as an overtime parking ticket posted against him. He is not an addict, but was swiftly banished to one of America's worst prisons under a law imposed upon New York State by our present generous, genial Vice President.

One tends to envy P. G. Wodehouse's performance on his death bed. As the last few seconds of his life ticked away the 93-year-old madcap turned to the woman he had married 63 years before and piped, "Cheerio!"

Dam' sight better than "Ugh."

One of the more worthwhile efforts of private industry is its underwriting of "The Travel Program for Foreign Diplomats, Inc.," tax-exempt non-governmental corporation established in 1962.

It picks up most of the tabs for tours of UN- and Washington-based diplomats and observers to enable them to see and perhaps understand the U.S. that spreads almost endlessly beyond the confines of New York and Washington, before they return to their native countries and, in many cases, assume policy-making positions.

"Outside New York City," commented an African diplomat, "Americans are less callous, less sophisticated, less gush, less Madison Avenue. There is more naturalness. And to me this is the kind of exchange I want, that is, a natural and more honest one."

The diplomats of all shades and backgrounds spend a few days living in with American families. They take camping trips into the wilds, attend seminars, sit in on school classes, hear our music, see our rugged greatness.

For example, in April a group of perhaps two dozen, ranging from ambassadors to embassy clerks, will climb aboard an American Airlines jet and spend ten days on a trip to Kentucky, Tennessee and Louisiana. They'll visit Secretariat and Riva Ridge at Clairborne Farms at Paris, Ky., attend a school for students from the economically stricken Appalachian coal regions, be plumed into a coal mine, listen to blue grass music in Nashville, go down the Mississippi to Memphis on a Mark Twain paddlewheel, and take in the pure and sinful life of the sidestreets of

Horse Power Used By Loggers

MALLORY CREEK, Ore. (AP)—Harold Benson and Ray Melvin are finding it profitable to switch from gasoline as their "fuel" source for a Potlatch Corp. logging contract.

They are using draft horses to remove remnants of a previous stand of old trees which tower over a thick new crop of young trees.

According to James Thiemens, Potlatch area forester, many of these old stands do not attract contract loggers who have invested in modern mechanical equipment. Horse logging can be economically practical with lower volumes and extensively damaging young-trees. Only one horse is used to drag a tree.

They'll Do It Every Time

Under socialism, housing resources will be allocated to meet human need, to provide homes for all the people. They will be used to provide not mere shelter that is marked by the monotony and drabness of most present-day housing, but homes for every family that are truly fit for human habitation, designed for comfort, efficiency, dignity and beauty.

With capitalism replaced, organized crime will also go, for it is the dog-eat-dog profit system that corrupts people and breeds crime. The rapist, the slasher, the cold-blooded killing of policemen, the dope peddler that poisons the mind of our youth, the corrupt or weak judges in our large cities, the lobbyist that corrupts our representative in Washington with bribes will also disappear from the scene.

Assured of basic necessities, some ask, won't people express their human nature by not working? The principle of socialism is; From each according to his ability, to each according to his work. It also embraces the principle; He who does not work, neither shall he eat. Socialism has no use either for exploiters or for parasites.

NEW YORK (AP) — Money is flowing back to the savings and loan associations, mutual fund sales are up, so is the stock market. Interest rates, meanwhile, are falling and, almost unbelievably, so are some prices.

Does it mean the economic picture is brightening? Well, yes and no. There's little question that some of the most dismal aspects of the picture aren't as dark as a year ago. But other parts are darker.

Retail sales still haven't shown a tendency to recover. Unemployment is still growing worse. Action to stimulate the economy lags. The dollar continues to fall in value, relative to the currencies of many nations.

If you tune in to the findings of the surveyors of consumer confidence you will hear reports of spirits being at their lowest ebb in decades, of growing cynicism about the ability of leadership, suspicion that institutions designed to serve the people are failing to do so.

The Federal Reserve Board, especially, is under attack because, despite its avowed intentions, it seems to have been unable to increase the money supply at a rate adequate for the pace of the economy.

But there are, it cannot be denied, some improvements beginning to show in the economy.

The rate of inflation is lessening, and for many people that's 50 per cent of the economic problem, the other 50 per cent being joblessness.

The housing picture has turned decidedly brighter — still tinged with gray, but healthier than just a few months ago, mainly because interest rates are falling.

When that happens, money reflows to savings and loan associations, which had been almost forced out of business because they couldn't offer interest on savings comparable with other institutions.

When money reflows to the S&Ls it almost certainly means a recovery in housing is only months away. Those signs are mixed at the moment, but by summer the pace of activity is bound to pick up, simply because lenders once again will be able to make loans.

Perhaps the most exuberant response to the slight changes has come from the securities markets. Almost overnight mutual funds have regained their sales momentum; sales have greatly exceeded redemptions.

Many stock market investors are convinced that now is the time to obtain buys of a lifetime. Blue-chip stocks still sell at low price-earnings ratios, despite the surge of the past few weeks.

Some of this enthusiasm is spread from Europe, where the economic decline seems to have hit sooner than in the United States and already to have reached bottom.

But there still is no energy program or final tax-rebate program, and while almost anyone you might stop on the street would agree that a sound recovery can't proceed without them, the agreement doesn't seem to lead to decision.

Ray Says He'll Tell Of 'Others'

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — James Earl Ray will tell "the names of the other people involved" if an appeal does not win him a trial in the murder of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., Ray's brother says.

Jerry Ray made the statement Thursday after his brother, who originally pleaded guilty in King's death, was turned down by U.S. District Court Judge Robert M. McRae Jr. in his request for a trial.

"He told me personally that, if he did not win an appeal, he would reveal the names of everyone involved," Jerry Ray said of his brother. "There seems to be a lot of people who don't want his story to get out, but they are not going to hush him up."

Ray's attorneys said they would immediately appeal McRae's ruling to the 6th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The 38-page ruling said Ray "coolly and deliberately" admitted to the slaying when he pleaded guilty March 10, 1969. It said McRae found no violations of Ray's constitutional rights to merit a full trial on charges in the April 4, 1968, slaying of King in Memphis.

Ray, who is serving a 99-year prison sentence, had sought a trial chiefly on grounds that his former attorneys did not prepare an adequate defense and that he was pressured into the plea.

However, he hinted at an eight-day hearing before McRae last fall that he was the unwitting participant in a conspiracy to kill King.

McRae said in his ruling that Ray had told his former attorneys and author William Bradford Huie "of his acting upon the direction of others, but none of them could corroborate Ray's version of other participants in spite of an extensive investigation in this regard."

The judge rejected Ray's claim that defense attorney Percy Foreman of Houston, Tex., coerced the plea.

A Page Of Opinion

Taxes Main Burden

One hindrance Americans do not need during a time of inflationary strain is higher taxes. Last year, along with all the other rising prices for products and services, taxes went up faster than inflation. This is the startling conclusion of a congressional joint economic committee.

The reason is that the progressive features of federal and some state income tax structures in the U.S. collided with the push for wage increases to overcome inflation. What happened is a clear example of the fact that no one wins when inflation gets out of hand.

Wage increases in many industries in 1974 were the result of record settlements. But for many families, higher incomes in inflated dollars meant lower living standards than in 1973 — and higher tax rates.

To illustrate, the committee found that an average middle income family with an income of $12,626 in 1973 needed an income of $14,466 — or $1,840 more — last year "simply to maintain its 1973 living standard." If that mythical family achieved an elevated income of $14,466 in 1974, it found its combined federal, state and local income taxes higher by more than 25 per cent — or $426 — because of higher tax brackets.

Social Security taxes for that same family increased by nearly 22 per cent last year, eroding still further its purchasing power. There are economists who continue to insist that high inflation is at best only a secondary worry. Every detailed analysis which appears on the effects of inflation on the American living standard demonstrates anew how misleading are such opinions.

Today In History

Today is Saturday, March 1, the 60th day of 1975. There are 305 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: In 1781, the American colonies adopted the Articles of Confederation, paving the way for a federal union.

On this date — In 1872, Congress authorized the creation of Yellowstone National Park. In 1932, the infant son of Colonel and Mrs. Charles Lindbergh was kidnapped from the Lindbergh home near Hopewell, New Jersey.

In 1954, five U.S. congressmen were wounded as three Puerto Rican nationalists fired wildly from the gallery of the House of Representatives in Washington.

Ten years ago: An explosion and fire destroyed a large apartment house in a suburb of Montreal, killing 24 or more persons.

Five years ago: Rhodesia's white minority government formally severed its last tie with the British Crown, dissolved Parliament and declared a racially segregated republic.

One year ago: A Federal grand jury in Washington indicted seven Nixon aides, including H. R. Haldeman, John Ehrlichman and John Mitchell, on charges of covering up the Watergate scandal.

Today's birthdays: Singer Dinah Shore is 55. Pro football commissioner Pete Rozelle is 49.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

A new technique is now being used to screen out people who are thought to be high risk candidates for strokes.

Dr. David N. Cohen and Dr. Richard Wangelin, of the Cleveland Clinic Foundation, have devised a test which quickly shows interference with the blood flow through the carotid artery in the neck.

By gently compressing this artery, and measuring the pressure changes within the eyeball, they are able to determine those people who have a serious obstruction to the blood flow in the carotid artery.

This test, in addition to those already available, may lead to the earlier detection of the narrowing of the carotid artery which can be responsible for stroke.

Dr. Julian A. Waller, of the University of Vermont, believes that "automobile drivers who smoke seem more likely to die in auto accidents than non-smokers."

By studying the blood of highway fatalities he came to the conclusion that people who drink alcohol and smoke tobacco "have a three times greater risk of dying in a traffic accident than nonsmokers who do not drink."

His other statistics, gleaned from his studies, are more complicated. But what is clearly apparent is that gasoline, alcohol and tobacco do not mix.

For years it has been suspected that people born with special and unusual creases in the ear lobes may be greater candidates for disease. Serious students of medicine have noted this unusual finding.

Recently, a team of doctors at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., led by Dr. Jack J. Sternlieb, released the statement that "it would seem that there is a relationship between the presence of ear creases and the evidence of the presence or absence of coronary artery disease."

I know that my readers will be examining their ear lobes now for creases. This should not be a source of concern because the specific type of crease that the doctors refer to is unusual and infrequent.

One of the more worthwhile efforts of private industry is its underwriting of "The Travel Program for Foreign Diplomats, Inc.," tax-exempt non-governmental corporation established in 1962.

It picks up most of the tabs for tours of UN-and Washington-based diplomats and observers to enable them to see and perhaps understand the U.S. that spreads almost endlessly beyond the confines of New York and Washington, before they return to their native countries and, in many cases, assume policy-making positions.

"Outside New York City," commented an African diplomat, "Americans are less callous, less sophisticated, less gush, less Madison Avenue. There is more naturalness. And to me this is the kind of exchange I want, that is, a natural and more honest one."

The diplomats of all shades and backgrounds spend a few days living in with American families. They take camping trips into the wilds, attend seminars, sit in on school classes, hear our music, see our rugged greatness.

For example, in April a group of perhaps two dozen, ranging from ambassadors to embassy clerks, will climb aboard an American Airlines jet and spend ten days on a trip to Kentucky, Tennessee and Louisiana. They'll visit Secretariat and Riva Ridge at Clairborne Farms at Paris, Ky., attend a school for students from the economically stricken Appalachian coal regions, be plummeted into a coal mine, listen to blue grass music in Nashville, go down the Mississippi to Memphis on a Mark Twain paddlewheeler, and take in the pure and sinful life of the sidestreets of Los Angeles, an advertisement appeared in a newspaper reading "Sexy hostesses needed for gambling junkets. Entails foreign travel. Expenses paid." Forty-five women, including housewives and school teachers looking for needed income, applied. They were arrested as they arrived at the announced employment office, and charged with being prostitutes.

The police had planted the ad. New York Criminal Court Judge John T. Brickley threw out the case against the Filipino Samaritan, who is a prison chaplain in his native land, and castigated the vicious entrapment system that has become more and more a tool of law enforcement officers.

"This man has devoted an entire life to people and the police portray him as a cheap thief," Judge Brickley said angrily from his bench.

In Los Angeles, the city attorney refused to prosecute the 45 women. Police Chief Ed Davis, sounding like some of the early Watergate characters, blamed the release of the entrapped women on "adverse publicity by the news media."

If possible, the baiting is worse among narcotics agents. Gov. Hugh Carey is looking into the case of a 22-year-old boy who has been sentenced to life imprisonment at horror-soaked Attica for arranging to deliver to a casual acquaintance, who had relentlessly importuned him, a half an ounce of cocaine. The "friend," a Narc in disguise, immediately arrested the kid. The young man, engaged to be married in June, had never had so much as an overtime parking ticket posted against him. He is not an addict, but was swiftly banished to one of America's worst prisons under a law imposed upon New York State by our present generous, genial Vice President.

One tends to envy P. G. Wodehouse's performance on his death bed. As the last few seconds of his life ticked away the 93-year-old madcap turned to the woman he had married 63 years before out of hand. Wage increases in many industries in 1974 were the result of record settlements. But for many families, higher incomes in inflated dollars meant lower living standards than in 1973 — and higher tax rates.

Dear Editor:

Many goals now recognized as reasonable in our country become unattainable because the rational (serving the public good) must yield to the irrational (serving private profit).

Automation, operated for private profit, assumes the guise of a monster. Under socialism, automation's potential for social good can readily be realized. Instead of rendering workers superfluous, it will be used to enlarge their knowledge of science and technology, to elevate the labor process in keeping with technological advance. Its introduction will be socially planned to derive the maximum social benefit rather than maximum profit for private owners, as under capitalism. It will be designed to provide both greater abundance for society and greater enrichment of the individual's life through more leisure and wider diversification of productive skills and interests. There will be complete security from birth to old age. Such evils as unemployment and poverty will seem as obsolete as slavery and cannibalism seem today.

Education in our capitalist society, because its costs eat into private profit is habitually starved, restricted and deformed to serve monopoly capital. In a socialist U.S.A., education at all levels, including preparation for all learned professions, will flourish and be freely available to all. Similarly, the achievements of medical science, of whose benefits many are now deprived, will be available to all people, without cost. Pensions sufficient to support a decent standard of living will remove the economic cares of old age. In short, socialism will free life of the cares and worries which plague even the better-paid workers today. The aspirin factory will automatically close. When there is no headache, no need for aspirin.

Under socialism, housing resources will be allocated to meet human need, to provide homes for all the people. They will be used to provide not mere shelter that is marked by the monotony and drabness of most present-day housing, but homes for every family that are truly fit for human habitation, designed for comfort, efficiency, dignity and beauty.

3-Generation Red Cross Family Saluted In March

During March, traditional Red Cross month, the Pickaway County Chapter American Red Cross salutes its first three generation family of Red Cross volunteers.

Mrs. Clara DeLong became a volunteer in February 1965 and has given 1800 hours service in the local office and the VA Hospital production service. After his retirement in the fall of 1965, Mark DeLong joined his wife in volunteer service to the veterans at the VA Hospital and has over 1600 hours.

Their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Margie DeLong, started serving as a volunteer at Berger Hospital in 1972 and has given over 300 hours. This year the chapter welcomed her daughter Melody, a Circleville Jr. High student as a Red Cross Youth volunteer.

Pickaway County Volunteers work at Berger Hospital, VA Hospital in Chillicothe, provide transportation through local agencies for patients to clinics and do visiting at Rest Homes.

There is a need for volunteers to work at the visitors desk at Berger Hospital. There is no age limit on this service. VA Hospital would welcome men and women to work with patients and join their Swing Club, a group of volunteers who play golf with patients on the hospital's beautiful golf course. Three orientations have been scheduled for March. Anyone wishing information on how to become a volunteer should call the Red Cross: 474-5736.

Split Up Texas, Congressman Urges

WASHINGTON (AP) — A conservative Texas congressman has a plan he believes will help him fight liberals: break the Lone Star state into five separate states and thus increase the number of conservative governors and senators.

Republican Rep. James M. Collins proposed Thursday that such a division would give the former state of Texas a total of 10 U.S. senators, rather than two; five governors, rather than one; and enough clout to deal with liberals from the East, North and West.

"Instead of having one state of Texas, we should have five Texas states including North, South, Central, East and West Texas," he said in a House speech.

He would keep the name "Texas" in each state because "everyone would want to be a Texan," he said in an interview.

Collins would take advantage of the resolution under which Texas was admitted to the United States in 1845. It said that four states, in addition to the state of Texas, could be formed with Texas' consent out of the former Republic of Texas.

The congressman said this meant that the plan could be executed by the Texas state legislature.

At the heart of Collins' proposal is a complaint that his fellow congressmen are "doing everything they can to overrun the minority" of conservatives and his belief that most of the additional politicians from the region would support his conservative views.

"The Eastern liberals are asking for no tax on fuel oil and all the tax on gasoline. The Western liberals suggest nationalizing the oil industry. The Northern liberals want price ceilings on beef," he said.

"Everyone wants to work over Texas because we have a small voice. The time has come for Texas to be five states," he declared.

3-Generation Red Cross Family Saluted In March

During March, traditional Red Cross month, the Pickaway County Chapter American Red Cross salutes its first three generation family of Red Cross volunteers.

Mrs. Clara DeLong became a volunteer in February 1965 and has given 1800 hours service in the local office and the VA Hospital production service. After his retirement in the fall of 1965, Mark DeLong joined his wife in volunteer service to the veterans at the VA Hospital and has over 1600 hours.

Their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Margie DeLong, started serving as a volunteer at Berger Hospital in 1972 and has given over 300 hours. This year the chapter welcomed her daughter Melody, a Circleville Jr. High student as a Red Cross Youth volunteer.

Pickaway County Volunteers work at Berger Hospital, VA Hospital in Chillicothe, provide transportation through local agencies for patients to clinics and do visiting at Rest Homes.

There is a need for volunteers to work at the visitors desk at Berger Hospital. There is no age limit on this service. VA Hospital would welcome men and women to work with patients and join their Swing Club, a group of

Split Up Texas, Congressman Urges

WASHINGTON (AP) — A conservative Texas congressman has a plan he believes will help him fight liberals: break the Lone Star state into five separate states and thus increase the number of conservative governors and senators.

Republican Rep. James M. Collins proposed Thursday that such a division would give the former state of Texas a total of 10 U.S. senators, rather than two; five governors, rather than one; and enough clout to deal with liberals from the East, North and West.

"Instead of having one state of Texas, we should have five Texas states including North, South, Central, East and West Texas," he said in a House speech.

He would keep the name "Texas" in each state because "everyone would want to be a Texan," he said in an interview.

Collins would take advantage of the resolution under which Texas was admitted to the United States in 1845. It said that four states, in addition to the state of Texas, could be formed with Texas' consent out of the former Republic of Texas.

The congressman said this meant that the plan could be executed by the Texas state legislature.

At the heart of Collins' proposal is a complaint that his fellow congressmen are "doing everything they can to overrun the minority" of conservatives and his belief that most of the additional politicians from the region would support his conservative views.

"The Eastern liberals are asking for no tax on fuel oil and all the tax on gasoline. The Western liberals suggest nationalizing the oil industry. The Northern liberals want price ceilings on beef," he said.

"Everyone wants to work over Texas because we have a small voice. The time has come for Texas to be five states," he declared.

Pickaway Senior Citizens Have Varied Programs For All Day Thursday Meeting

Pickaway Senior Center members met for a carry-in dinner at the Lutheran Parish House Thursday followed by a program and business meeting in the afternoon.

Morning activities were card playing and visiting. Pauline Jones, chaplain, offered the table prayer. The afternoon speakers were all guests for the noon dinner.

Mrs. Blanche Kerns, president of the group, presided over the afternoon program. The first speaker was Harry Bieber, manager of the Chillicothe Social Security Office. He spoke principally about SSI, what it is and who is entitled to receive it. He was followed by Joan Scott, Senior Citizens' Advocate for Area 6 of the Central Ohio Planning Area. She is available to help and advise senior citizens who are having problems with Social Security, SSI or related problems. The third speaker was Bill Bauer from the Portsmouth office of the General Telephone Co. He spoke on the "History Of Sound" using tape recordings made from early radio shows, the first sound movie, early juke boxes, up to the present time of sophisticated communication methods, concluding with a recording of a computer speaking and singing.

He said that even though people think that too much money has been spent on sending men to the moon and other outer space experiments, that mankind has benefitted greatly from the technical advances which have resulted from this work, particularly in the field of medical innovations.

At the conclusion of the business meeting, Guy Leatherwood spoke briefly about the possibility of sponsoring a trip to the Holy Land in February of 1976. He would be willing to be the tour guide and costs would be very reasonable for a 10 day trip. Anyone from the area would be welcome to go along. A visit from a travel agent will be scheduled in May or June and slides will be shown and details of the proposed trip discussed. Anyone who would be interested in coming to such a meeting is invited to call the Pickaway Senior Center 474-4916. You need not be senior citizen to go along, but the pace of the trip will be geared to accommodate senior citizens.

During the business meeting, Dewey Downs was chosen as the Senior Citizen of the Month. This was done by drawing a name from a box containing the names of all present. This will be a monthly event from now on. Mr. Downs was presented with a gift from Mrs. Kerns and this will be repeated each month.

Those having birthdays during February were honored by the group singing "Happy Birthday" to: Florence Metzger, Agnes Ragland, Magdalene Fee, Laura Rector and Mert Lorentz.

It was decided to have a ham and bean dinner at the next all day meeting. Ruth Miranda will be in charge of cooking the beans and Ethel Hoover in charge of salads. Those who do not wish to eat beans and salad may bring their usual sack lunches. Birthday cakes will be provided. A free will offering will be taken to cover the dinner expense. The program has been changed from the one listed in the newsletter which is in the mail, to Rev. Currens showing slides of the Holy Land. This will be appropriate since the meeting will be held during Holy Week.

Pickaway Senior Center is an organization for those age 55 or over in Pickaway County or surrounding area. Membership fee is minimal, and if one of a couple is over 55 and the other is younger, both may join. More information can be obtained by visiting the Center at 430 Lancaster Pike, Circleville, weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. or calling 474-4916.

OES Uses Patriotic Theme, Dedicates Labyrinth Rug

Forty members attended the Tuesday evening meeting of Circleville Chapter 90, Order of the Eastern Star, in the Masonic Temple.

Following the opening ceremony, Clarence Radcliffe read "George Washington's Prayer For The United States," in carrying out the patriotic theme of the evening. Elaine Bowman, worthy matron, welcomed Marie L. Hamilton, past grand matron and Donna Junk, deputy grand matron of Concord Chapter, Frankfort.

Mrs. Stella Griner, a member of Eastern Star for 71 years, was presented at the altar. Miriam Barnhart complimented her and presented a gift from the chapter.

The charter was draped for Wilma Lou Borrer who died Feb. 19th and the worthy matron paid tribute to her memory.

A ceremony using the theme "Light" was used to dedicate the new labyrinth rug with all officers participating. The addendum was conducted by the conductress and Star Point officers. Leona Riegel, chairman of trustees, accepted the rug for the chapter and expressed appreciation of trustees and chapter members.

Mrs. Bowman announced the date for inspection will be April 22nd and the deputy grand matron will be inspecting officer. Visitation of Raymond E. Belfrage, grand patron, has been planned for Sept. 23rd.

Mrs. Bowman brought the meeting to a close with this thought "God is the silent partner in all great enterprises."

An informal social hour in the dining room immediately followed the meeting. The serving table was decorated with long streamers of red and blue on white linen. Three bud vases holding red carnations were emphasized with small busts of Abraham Lincoln and George Washington placed in between. Refreshments were served by a committee headed by Donna Noecker.

The next regular meeting of the chapter will be March 11th at the masonic temple with members wearing street dress.

SUNDAY TEA

Simone Beck's chocolate cake, tea with milk or lemon.

Simone Beck's Chocolate Cake

From "Simca's Cuisine" by Simone "Simca" Beck (Knopf) and fabulously good.

¼ cup raisins
¼ cup Scotch whiskey
7 ounces sweet cooking chocolate, broken into small pieces
½ cup butter, cut in small pieces
3 eggs, separated
2-3rds cup sugar
4½ tablespoons cake flour mixed with 2-3rds cup almonds that have been blanched, dried and pulverized in an electric blender

Pinch of salt
Line the bottom of a round 8½ by 2 inch cake pan with wax paper; butter sides of pan and paper. Steep raisins in whiskey. In the top of a double boiler over hot water melt chocolate with 3 tablespoons water, stirring until smooth. Off heat stir in the butter, thoroughly incorporating each piece before adding the next. Beat egg yolks with the sugar until a pale creamy yellow; stir in chocolate and flour-almond mixture, then raisins and whiskey. Beat egg whites with salt until stiff; stir a third of them into chocolate mixture, then fold all back into remaining egg whites. Turn into prepared pan.

Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until outside is firm but center moist — 20 minutes. Let stand for 10 minutes, then turn out on a wire rack and cool a few hours or overnight. Remove wax paper just before icing. Best made a day before serving. Cover with this icing: In the top of a double boiler over hot water melt 3 ounces sweet cooking chocolate (broken into small pieces); off heat stir in 3 tablespoons confectioners' sugar and then 3 tablespoons butter a little at a time; blend well; spread at once on cake. Allow icing to set about ½ hour before serving cake.

Ohio Senate Report

By OAKLEY C. COLLINS
17th District Senator

The foremost items currently on the agenda of the General Assembly are Governor Rhodes' bold proposals to "depression-proof Ohio." His package of economic initiatives includes four constitutional amendments promoting inner city industrial expansion, low-cost housing development, state-wide transportation research and construction, and a capital improvements plan for urban renewal, health facility development, and expanded ports along the Ohio River and Lake Erie. All will provide jobs, reducing the welfare, crime and despair of unemployment.

Governor Rhodes has, in effect, thrown the ball to the Democrat-controlled legislature in the form of these proposals. They can either run with it, stall, devise their own game plan as an alternative, or do nothing. To reject the Governor's program without providing an alternative would place a grave hardship upon the thousands of Ohioans jobless through no fault of their own.

The initial Democrat strategy has been of the carrot-and-stick variety. Democrat House leadership has promised fair and expeditious consideration of Rhodes' proposals, while Democrat leaders in the Senate periodically issue reminders that they have enough votes to stall any legislation the Governor may introduce. As this is written they will apparently attempt to rewrite Rhodes' proposals to fit Democrat priorities, leaving them partially intact to present an image of compromise.

Two factors greatly complicate legislative maneuvering. The amount of money they will make available, over $4 billion, guarantees active participation in the legislative process by special interests desiring favorable consideration. Each legislator, committee and chamber must draw that fine line between testimony by such groups offered out of self-interest, and that which will improve the bills for all segments of the general public.

For the Governor's programs to be of maximum benefit to all Ohioans they must appear on the June 3rd primary ballot for voter approval. Therefore, as constitutional amendments, they must pass the legislature with 3-5 approval of both chambers and be filed with the Secretary of State 90 days prior to the election.

Ohio's economy will sink further into the doldrums if the Democrat leadership fails to act decisively. President Ford recently released for state use several billion dollars in impounded federal funds which Ohio will not get without adequate matching state funds. Enormous revenue paid to the federal government by Ohio taxpayers will be lost to other states if Ohio cannot quickly find the necessary seed money. Legislative foot-dragging will seriously handicap Ohio in attracting its fair share of these funds. Ohioans may bear the double burden of unemployment and increased taxes if the Governor's proposals do not pass the legislature by March 4. The next regular election is in November—five long months away for those standing in the unemployment line. Moreover, the rate of growth of unemployment is increasing, promising an even greater number of layoffs.

At the same time the cost of unemployment to Ohioans has soared. Since 1970 state welfare and unemployment insurance costs have almost tripled and the cost of crime to Ohioans nearly doubled. Clearly this cannot continue without a potentially disastrous tax increase. The Governor's proposals call for a 7-10-cent sales tax and 9-10-cent gasoline tax increase, but cannot be compared to the potential cost and human misery of unchecked unemployment.

It has been suggested that the four constitutional amendments could go before the public in late summer special election. Two more months of rampant unemployment is unacceptable. In addition, the Secretary of State's office estimates such an election would cost the people of Ohio at least $2 million. Special elections usually have a smaller voter turnout than regular elections, meaning a small minority of voters could decide on a program which could significantly affect all Ohioans. The extra expense of a special election and extended unemployment is not justified.

This crisis requires decisive and responsible leadership. Governor Rhodes has taken a bold step toward putting people back to work in Ohio and his plans should not be neglected or picked apart for partisan reason.

1040 U.S. Individual Income Tax Return Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

(Q) Are utility taxes deductible?

(A) Utility taxes imposed under state or local law are not deductible if the rate differs from that of the general sales tax in your area.

(Q) I bought a new car recently for personal use which developed so many mechanical problems that I had to get rid of it. I traded it in for less than what I paid. Is this loss deductible?

(A) No. A loss from the sale or exchange of personal property is not a deductible loss, unless it results from casualty or theft. However, don't forget that your state or local sales tax on the purchase of your new car or the part of the tax you paid that is equal to the general sales tax is deductible from your Federal income tax.

(Q) Don't I have to show exact amounts to the penny of deductions, income, etc., on my tax return?

(A) No. Taxpayers may round off such amounts to the whole dollar. This means that you may eliminate any amount less than 50 cents and increase any amount from 50 to 99 cents to the next dollar.

(Q) How can I determine whether to use Form 1040 or 1040A to figure my tax?

(A) Generally, the Short Form 1040A is used by a person who does not itemize his deductions and whose gross

Legislative Report

By MYRL SHOEMAKER,
State Representative
88th House District

The General Assembly has spent the last week of February focusing its attention on the four proposed constitutional amendments I have referred to in past issues of this newsletter. Namely;

1. A Housing Finance Measure;
2. A Transportation Bond Measure financed by a gasoline tax increase;
3. A General Development Bond Measure financed by a sales tax increase and
4. A Manufacturing Tax Break Measure.

If the four measures are to be voted on at the June 3 primary, the Ohio General Assembly must act by March 5. In efforts to expedite the hearing process, the House of Representatives has given initial concentration to the Housing and General Development measures, while the Senate has concentrated on giving initial consideration to the Manufacturing Tax Break and Transportation Measures.

Whether or not sufficient and thorough hearings can be given these four measures by the March 5 deadline is a matter yet to be determined. These are not simple matters, despite the sloganeering offered by some. I suggest the Legislature has a constitutional obligation to properly and thoroughly examine any proposals which go to the voters. I further suggest that the Legislature would be neglecting its responsibility if it did not serve as an educational forum in which the public is exposed to the full ramifications of all issues submitted to ballot consideration.

One of the four constitutional proposals being considered is a wide-ranging scheme to give massive tax breaks to new and expanding manufacturing industry in Ohio. The proponents of this issue claim that giving tax breaks to manufacturing industry will encourage new building and expansion of industry and thereby save jobs and create new ones. An analysis of this concept is in order.

The tax break proposal asks that three separate state and local taxes be abated or reduced.

- 1) The corporate income or franchise tax — this is a millage levy on the firm's net assets, or, an income tax based upon a percentage of the firm's after taxes profit (the state collects the higher of these two tax amounts as the firm's tax liability);

- 2) the tangible personal property tax, which assesses a firm for its machinery, equipment, and inventories used in manufacturing (the major beneficiary of this tax sources is the local school district); and

3) the property tax, which is the local millage levy on land and buildings, paid by the firm based supposedly, on the same rate as local homeowners pay.

The proposal put forth would allow total exemption from the corporate income or franchise tax and the tangibles tax. The exemption would also include relief for one-half of the local property taxes. To be eligible for such exemptions a manufacturing company would have to begin building in Ohio or have completed construction by July 1, 1978. This would apply to a completely new facility or an expansion of an existing one.

Basically, there will be two periods for which these exemptions apply. For building in an area of critical need within a city, such taxes would be exempted for 30 years. For building anywhere else in Ohio the period of exemption would be 12 years. The area of critical need exemption generally referred to as the "inner city" is designed to provide significant incentives for an industry to locate in the inner city to help revitalize the urban areas and provide jobs where large areas of unemployment exist. Overall, these exemptions are thought to give Ohio a competitive advantage among the states to compete for new industry.

The advantages of such a proposal can be as follows:

- 1) a tax exemption program could enhance the image of Ohio as a low business tax state, and encourage new industry to move here;
- 2) decisions of firms who want to locate in the Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Michigan area may be drawn to Ohio, other things being equal, because of the tax climate;
- 3) a multi-state firm with expansion plans may be encouraged to choose its Ohio plant as the expansion site; and
- 4) tax exemptions could prevent the out-migration of existing firms to a more favorable tax state or prevent the closing-down of firms whose tax savings would enable it to stay in business.

On the other hand, such a proposal has less than desirable aspects;

- 1) there are desires indicating that firms do not decide to build or expand in a state simply because of taxes, and a program giving this degree of long-term tax breaks may simplify the question of why firms locate where they do and give the firm a free tax ride besides;
- 2) to give such tax breaks would be to shift the balance of the state's tax liability from business to the individual — there would be a question of whether business was paying its share;
- 3) tax breaks ignore the root problem that industry may not be expanding because loan money in tight-money times may not be available; tax exemptions give a firm that cannot build no benefit; and
- 4) tax breaks will give new industries a tax advantage over existing businesses, and thus are unfair to a firm that has already made a go of its business.

I believe it is important that all these pro and con aspects be examined thoroughly before the Legislature acts definitively on the Tax Break issue.

Chessie Fears Overloading Of Rail Lines

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Officials of the Chessie System Inc. say they are concerned that the restructuring of financially troubled rail companies in the government-supported Conrail system may overburden the healthy railroads.

"To require Chessie and the other strong lines to meet tax-supported rail competition would not only be unjust to them but injurious as well," Chessie told shareholders this week in its annual report.

Chessie is the parent company of the Chesapeake & Ohio and Baltimore & Ohio railroads.

The best way to revitalize the financially troubled railroads would be to free them from the restructured network of "encumbering, duplicatory facilities and trackage, such as underutilized branch lines," Chessie said.

"The resulting smaller yet stronger rail system should be able to provide essential transportation service and pay its own way," Chessie officials said.

The railroad said it must invest up to $1 billion within five years to handle needed growth in its coal traffic.

Chessie said more coal is a key to revitalizing the northeastern railroads and easing energy pressure on oil.

The railroad said it expects coal production along its tracks to increase 50 per cent during the next five years. Chessie added that its coal traffic this year should be 10 per cent above last year's total of 83 million tons carried.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Always Later Than You Think

DEAR ABBY: My younger sister passed away last month and I found a yellowed clipping of your column in her Bible. Here it is:

DEAR ABBY: Will you please remind your readers to look after their parents who are too old to look after themselves? Old parents need all their children. It's not always easy to cope with aging parents, but we weren't easy to cope with when THEY were raising US either. We OWE it to them. I just wish someone had reminded ME of these things when Mama was alive. It's too late now and I haven't had a decent night's sleep since she died three months ago.

I knew she had a good home with my sister, so that was that. Why didn't I take her for a few weeks, or even for Sunday dinner, or for a little drive? I never have time for her, yet I had time for others, and anything else I wanted to do. A change of scenery or even a meal at my home would have meant so much to her, but I was too busy. Oh, I had plenty of excuses.

I suppose the only one in our large family who is sleeping is my sister who took Mama to live with her. I've tried to ease my conscience by telling myself that I wasn't really ashamed of Mama like my brothers were. Or that I wasn't cheap, like another sister. I DID buy her things (which she really never needed or enjoyed much.) But it's too late now. I hope Mama forgives me.

CAN'T SLEEP

Abby, "Can't Sleep" was my sister.

I'm the one Mama went to live with.

It's too late for me to tell my sister that Mama did forgive her. Mothers always do. But I hope you will print this again for those for whom it's not yet too late.

I just wish someone had reminded ME of these things when Mama was alive. It's too late now and I haven't had a decent night's sleep since she died three months ago.

I knew she had a good home with my sister, so that was that. Why didn't I take her for a few weeks, or even for Sunday dinner, or for a little drive? I never have time for her, yet I had time for others, and anything else I wanted to do. A change of scenery or even a meal at my home would have meant so much to her, but I was too busy. Oh, I had plenty of excuses.

I suppose the only one in our large family who is sleeping is my sister who took Mama to live with her. I've tried to ease my conscience by telling myself that I wasn't really ashamed of Mama like my brothers were. Or that I wasn't cheap, like another sister. I DID buy her things (which she really never needed or enjoyed much.) But it's too late now. I hope Mama forgives me.

CAN'T SLEEP

Abby, "Can't Sleep" was my sister. I'm the one Mama went to live with. It's too late for me to tell my sister that Mama did forgive her. Mothers always do. But I hope you will print this again for those for whom it's not yet too late.

UCLA Edges Cal, 51-47

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A much-maligned guard made the key play as UCLA squeaked past stubborn, stalling California and headed for a ninth successive Pacific-8 Conference basketball title.

Pete Trgovich, who had been shooting just 39 per cent from the floor a month ago, stole the ball from California guard Ricky Hawthorne with 18 seconds to play Friday night, drove down and scored unmolested as the Bruins, rated No. 5, edged the Golden Bears 51-47.

"On the play before the steal, I didn't know whether the coaches wanted me to play back or gamble," said the 6-foot-5 guard from Indiana. "So I played back and doubleteamed Hawthorne. When the return pass came, I just happened to be there and that was it."

Trgovich was fouled on the layin, made the free throw and then added two more free throws with seven seconds left.

The Bruin theme song might have been "Night and Day" for the way they played—so poorly in the first half and so well in the second.

Cal led 27-20 at intermission but Dave Meyers led UCLA back.

"Our first half was the most miserable first half played by a UCLA team in Pauley Pavilion," said Coach John Wooden. "I thought we played an exceptional game in the second half...The difference in the second half was not that Cal played poorly, but that we played so much better."

Meyers hit seven of eight from field for 16 points and in the second half the Bruins hit 13 for 16 from the field. That's 81.3 per cent.

It was UCLA's 80th consecutive victory at home and gave the Bruins a 21-3 season record, 10-2 in the Pac-8.

Across town, Southern California got 16 points each from senior Gus Williams and freshman Earl Evans as the Trojans pounded past Stanford 85-77. John Lambert's key baskets midway through the second half triggered an 8-0 spurt and gave the Trojans the lead for good.

A late basket by Lonnie Shelton helped Oregon State stay on UCLA's heels with a 44-41 triumph over stalling Washington State. The Beavers are 9-3 in the conference.

Rounding out the Pac-8, Greg Ballard gave Oregon a hardfought 97-96 victory over Washington with two free throws in the final 10 seconds.

Elsewhere in college basketball, 10th-ranked Penn buried Yale 98-73 and clinched a tie for its sixth straight Ivy League title; No. 15 Texas-El Paso beat Utah 71-65; No. 18 Pan American beat Mexico City University 102-91 in an exhibition game, and No. 19 Arizona defeated Colorado State 107-97.

Also, New Mexico defeated Brigham Young 77-72 in overtime; Princeton trimmed Brown 61-57; Harvard routed Columbia 111-72; Dartmouth coasted past Cornell 95-73; Air Force downed California-Irvine 70-58; Arizona State routed Wyoming 94-76; Idaho turned back Idaho State 70-66 and Seattle stopped St. Mary's 72-65.

Ford Gets Regulations On Sports

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House has in its possession today the controversial federal rules to outlaw sex discrimination in universities and colleges, including intercollegiate athletics.

Caspar W. Weinberger, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, approved the regulations Friday and sent them to President Ford for his signature.

Under an unusual provision in the 1972 law barring unequal treatment of the sexes, the complex regulations must be submitted to a 45-day congressional review after the President signs them.

Without any major legislative changes by Congress, HEW sources said, the rules should be in place in time to be enforced when schools reopen in the fall.

The final regulations have not been made public yet and a copy of them could not be obtained immediately. However, government sources said they basically are unchanged from the version proposed last June, except for a few new exemptions ordered by Congress.

At that time, Weinberger told a news conference that the proposed regulations "would neither exempt nor disrupt intercollegiate athletics as some have feared; rather the regulation moves in the direction of insuring better opportunities for women in athletic programs."

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Steve Mizerak of Edison, N.J., the top qualifier with a 4-1 won-lost record, led four contestants into today's finals of the Pabst-Brunswick Pro Pocket Billiards Tournament.

Others vying for the $1,500 top prize at Ohio State University were Allen Hopkins of Linden, N.J., Joe Balsis of Billings, Mont., and Steve Cook of Lima, Ohio.

he is retiring to devote his full time to dentistry in Columbus, Ohio.

Elsewhere, the Baltimore Orioles signed pitchers Ross Grimsley, Wayne Garland and Doyle Alexander and infielders Doug DeCinces and Taylor Duncan.

The California Angels announced that they have reached agreement with outfielder Frankie George and second baseman Dennis Doyle and now have all 38 players in the fold.

Malone Captures Cage Championship

CANTON, Ohio (AP)—Malone captured the Mid-Ohio Conference basketball crown Friday night by defeating Cedarville 83-73 as Ben Tillman and Mark Klein combined for 56 points.

Tillman pumped in 29 points and Klein 27 for the NAIA tournament-bound Malone, now 23-5.

Steve Young scored 24 points for Cedarville, which closed out the season with a 15-12 mark.

As a designated hitter last season, Tommy Davis of the Baltimore Orioles accounted for 140 runs. Frank Robinson figured in the scoring of 127 runs.

RUGGED INDIVIDUALIST—Bill Russell talks to a group of children in preparation for a television program, "Russell Raps With Kids." Russell, coach of the Seattle SuperSonics, of the National Basketball Association, is one of the last of the rugged individualists in the era of superstars and super press agency in sports.

Pearce Leader In Gleason Golf

LAUDERHILL, Fla. (AP) — "I've always idolized Arnold Palmer," said young Eddie Pearce. "I've looked up to him all my life."

"I went to school (Wake Forest) on an Arnold Palmer scholarship."

"I've tried to pattern my golf game and my life after him."

And now he's got to try to beat him. Pearce, the leader, and the rejuvenated Palmer, three strokes back, were in a threesome with U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin today in the third round of the $260,000 Jackie Gleason Golf Classic.

Pearce, at 22 one of the youngest men on the pro tour, rode into the second round lead with a spectacular, eight-under-par 64 that produced a two-round total of 131, 13 under par.

But the 45-year-old Palmer, playing with all the flair and fever that made him the idol of Pearce and millions of others, produced the most excitement on the 7,128 yard Inverrary Country Club course.

"Arnie's got it going."

The word spread like wildfire through the gallery. And they flocked to his side, happily, joyously joining the army of followers that has helped make the muscular man a legend.

By the time he made the turn into the back nine he was trailed by growing thousands who whooped and hollered, galloped and stampeded to gain a vantage point to view the next shot, cheered every familiar hitch of the bristles.

He rewarded them with a six under-par 66—his best round in two years—and moved to within three shots of the lead at 134.

"I'm rolling the ball good again now. Rolling it real good," said the man whose well-publicized putting problems have kept him from victory since the 1973 Bob Hope Desert Classic.

"Just let me play the next two rounds as well as I played the last two and I'll be very happy," Palmer said.

First-round leader Bob Stanton slipped back to second with a 68 that left him one stroke back of Pearce at 132.

Black Hawks Beat Atlanta Flames, 4-3

ATLANTA (AP) — Chicago's Darcy Rota said he didn't care who got the credit for the winning goal Friday night that lifted the Black Hawks to a 4-3 comeback victory over the Atlanta Flames. "Their defenseman actually put it in," he said.

Rota was initially credited with the goal at 14:23 of the third period, but the official scorer changed his mind after the National Hockey League game ended, giving it to Jim Pappin instead.

"Anyway, we won," Rota said of the triumph that moved the Hawks into first place in Division 2, one point ahead of idle Vancouver. He said the shot actually was made by Atlanta's Ed Kea with help from Pappin.

It was the only NHL action and an uphill struggle for the Hawks, who trailed 3-0 after the opening period.

Rule By Right Wins Feature At Latonia

FLORENCE, Ky. (AP) — Rule By Right won the $4,000 featured eighth race at Latonia Friday by six lengths and paid $14.60, $5.80 and $2.60.

The 9-1 daily double combination of Maple River and Josiah returned $20.40.

Friday when the Mets purchased slugger Dave Kingman from the Giants for an estimated $100,000.

The Giants, who once demanded a Met pitcher for their inconsistent slugger, settled for cash this time because of their problems at the gate. The Giants have been one of the poorest drawing teams in baseball of late.

"If he makes contact, he can scare you," said New York Manager Yogi Berra of his newest player. "He strengthens our bench and gives us insurance in the outfield."

Kingman had publicly asked to be traded, since he wasn't playing regularly with the Giants. The rangy infielder-outfielder hit .223 in 121 games last season, but connected for 18 home runs and had 55 RBIs.

His best seasons came in 1972 and 1973, when he hit 29 and 24 home runs, respectively, while playing part-time. Those years included some tape-measure shots indicative of his ferocious power. But he also struck out a lot, indicative of his inconsistency.

It was at this time that the Giants requested southpaw Jon Matlack from the Mets in return for Kingman's services. The Mets offered their pitcher Jerry Koosman, but the Giants turned down the proposed deal.

"If Kingman plays everyday," said New York outfielder Cleon Jones, "he can probably hit 30 homers."

Teammate Joe Torre concurred: "We finally got the right-handed power hitter we're looking for."

But Berra may have a problem finding a place for Kingman, who plays first, third and the outfield with the same inconsistency he shows at the plate. Kingman realizes he faces a competitive challenge with his new team.

"That's okay," he says. "I'm aware of the competition. That's the way it should be."

The Cleveland Indians and Chicago Cubs also were involved in a deal Friday. The Indians traded right-handed relief pitcher Milt Wilcox to the Cubs for left-handed reliever Dave LaRoche and minor league outfielder Brock Davis.

The Indians also lost a player. Pitcher Steve Arlin told the team that he is retiring to devote his full time to dentistry in Columbus, Ohio.

Elsewhere, the Baltimore Orioles signed pitchers Ross Grimsley, Wayne Garland and Doyle Alexander and infielders Doug DeCinces and Taylor Duncan.

The California Angels announced that they have reached agreement with outfielder Frankie George and second baseman Dennis Doyle and now have all 38 players in the fold.

GABORONE, Botswana (AP) — Botswana plans to launch a nationwide campaign in 1975 to vaccinate all children up to the age of 14 against tuberculosis, the ministry of health announced.

Records show that some 2,500 new cases of tuberculosis are reported each year and many cases are not reported at all.

Piano Whiz Kids Meet

NEW YORK (AP) — One person who went backstage to greet Arthur Rubinstein after his only concert here this season was ragtime composer Eubie Blake.

"Oh, I'm glad to meet you," Rubinstein said. "I hear you're a marvelous pianist." Blake told Rubinstein, "After tonight I'm not so sure." He added that he'd be 92 in four more days.

Rubinstein, who was 88 the previous week, momentarily pondered their ages and said, "Why, with inflation, we're both 125!"

Brothers Go To Youth Commission For Arson, 2 Criminal Mischiefs

Among the youths appearing this past week in Pickaway County Juvenile Court were an 11-year-old boy and his 13-year-old brother charged with two counts of criminal mischief and arson.

The two boys pleaded guilty at their arraignments to tampering with Christmas decorations at two homes and arson. At that time they were released to the custody of their mother. They appeared back last week for final disposition of their cases.

Judge Guy G. Cline placed each boy in the Ohio Youth Commission and ordered them to make restitution for the damages caused by their delinquent acts.

Another boy received a sentence to the Ohio Youth Commission during the week but the court suspended the original sentence, placing the youth on probation for three years. The 14-year-old Circleville boy had appeared on charges of aggravated burglary and petit theft. The court also ordered him to make restitution.

Cases against two 16-year-old Circleville boys were dismissed after they had served their probation terms for convictions of malicious destruction.

In other action, the court heard seven traffic cases and granted permission for a 17-year-old boy to marry an 18-year-old girl.

Robert Edward Clements, 16, Route 1, Stoutsville, appeared on a charge of driving without a valid operator's license. The court suspended $35 of a $50 fine and suspended his license for three months after he has acquired a valid license.

A stop sign violation brought a $10 fine to John J. Aber, 18, 207 W. Main St. The court suspended his license for one month but ordered the license suspension to run concurrently with another case against him. He was also ordered to attend traffic school.

Speeding charges brought suspended fines of $10 each to Gary L. Hall, 17, Route 1, and Daniel H. Brinker, also 17. Each boy was also ordered to attend traffic school and had his license suspended for one month. The court returned Brinker's license to use to drive to work and school during his suspension.

Timothy Gaines, 17, was found guilty of failure to maintain assured clear distance ahead. He, too, received a $10 suspended fine and had his license suspended for one month. The court returned his license to use to drive to school and work and ordered him to attend traffic school.

In final action during the week, the court transferred one traffic case to Fairfield County and one to Franklin County. Three cases were also terminated with the Pickaway County Children's Services.

Man Freed Of Charges In Murder

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Realtor John R. Allen, 42, said he hopes to again "be normal self" after a Hamilton County Common Pleas Court jury found him innocent of the murder of his fellow employee.

Allen was found innocent of aggravated murder in the July 25, 1974 fatal shooting of Harry Martineau, 55, on a gravel road off U.S. 50 in western Hamilton County.

Allen, who formerly operated an agency office for Martineau, had been sued for $33,000 by Martineau.

Allen left Martineau to work for another firm, he said.

Mrs. June Peace, Martineau's secretary, was the chief prosecution witness. She said Allen had her arrange a meeting with Martineau in her car. They argued as she drove, she said. Mrs. Peace said she heard further arguing and a shot fired when they left her car on the rural road.

The defense produced 15 witnesses from Allen's busy real estate schedule of July 25. The witnesses accounted for Allen's time at the time of the shooting.

"We just didn't feel that according to the time schedule, that he was able to do it," said John Ellison, jury foreman. "We feel he wasn't there when the crime was committed."

Sandman Acting Cincy Manager

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Cincinnati Safety Director Henry Sandman today became acting city manager after E. Robert Turner resigned.

Sandman, a former assistant police chief, has already applied for the $46,000 a year post.

Mayor Theodore M. Berry said more than 40 applications have been received and referred to a screening committee.

Shock Parole Regulations Take Effect

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The shock parole program no longer affords an early release from prison for drug pushers, rapists and armed robbers.

New guidelines effective today exclude all first-degree felons from eligibility for the controversial program which theoretically permits inmates to be set free after six months — regardless of their prison sentence.

To be eligible, an inmate cannot have served a previous term of more than 30 days, but until today murder and aggravated murder were the only offenses that precluded consideration for early release.

George F. Denton, director of Rehabilitation and Correction, estimated the added restrictions would cut back by about 25 per cent the number of inmates released through the 14-month-old program.

The action comes five months after the controversial release of Carlos Aleman Jr., a convicted drug pusher who served only two years of a 50-to-100-year sentence for sale of $264,000 worth of heroin to an undercover agent.

Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Court Judge John Patton, who sentenced Aleman, called the parole action a "total insult to our system of justice."

Denton, an advocate of the early release concept, concedes shock parole has not been favorably received by the public, but contends cases like Aleman's are "isolated" incidents. Four out of five applications to the Ohio Adult Parole Authority are denied, he said.

SAFETY SEMINAR—C. K. The seminar, meeting 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Lutheran Parish House, stresses automobile and pedestrian safety. The Scouts will have to pass an examination at the conclusion of the seminar and prepare for a written drivers test to complete qualifications for the merit badge.

Chrysler Extends Rebate Program

DETROIT (AP) — The Chrysler Corp. has extended a limited rebate program, but other U.S. car makers say they're optimistic that the modest auto sales rebound will continue without such a purchase incentive.

Chrysler, the first auto maker to offer rebates in mid-January, announced Friday that it will grant $200 discounts for the first three weeks of March on all remaining new 1974 models and on its 1975 compact custom sports coupes.

That doesn't begin to match the rebates of $200 to $600 the No. 3 auto maker and its competitors have offered for the past six weeks on a wide range of 1975 models.

General Motors and American Motors are shunning continued rebates in favor of base price reductions stemming almost entirely from decreases in the amount of standard equipment offered on each model.

Ford Motor Co. said it would allow buyers to get similar price reductions by specifying equipment cuts like taking biasbelted tires instead of radially tires, which are standard equipment.

Ford also is offering discounts of from $83 to $113 for eliminating such options as vinyl roofs, whitewall tires and deluxe trims, on special orders of some small models.

Measure Wins OK

WASHINGTON (AP) — Committees of both the House and Senate have approved re-processed versions of the coal strip mining bill President Ford vetoed late last year.

The Senate Interior Committee recommended the bill to the full Senate 11 to 2 Friday. The House Interior Committee took similar action Thursday.

Congressional leaders are hopeful they can put the finished product on Ford's desk by the end of March. If Congress approves the legislation in its present form, another veto seems likely.

Like the House panel, the Senate committee made few changes from the 1974 version of the bill Ford vetoed on Dec. 31, and rejected nearly all major administration proposals for modifications.

Both House and Senate committees rejected administration provisions that would have allowed strip mining in national forests, limited citizen suits against strip mine operators and given the interior secretary special powers to define environmental standards.

The House panel did agree to an administration request to delete a proposed special unemployment fund for out-of-work strip miners, but the Senate group refused to make that concession, voting to retain the fund.

Although the House and Senate versions are very similar, there are a few differences.

Roundtown Players Children's Production Scheduled For May

Roundtown Players will present its fourth annual children's production May 15 and May 16 in Memorial Hall Theater with curtain times at 2 and 4 p.m. using for the first time an all youth cast.

Based on Richard Atwater's popular children's novel of the same title, "Mr.

Popper's Penguins," it is the story of an eccentric family whose paperhanger father (an Arctic explorer at heart) acquires a family of 16 penguins who live in the Poppers' ice box.

Edith Grigg, chairman of the Children's Theater Committee, obtained the script by writing directly to playwright Rosemary Musil of Missouri. The author of over 30 children's plays, Ms. Musil won the 1974 Anna Chorprenning Cup for best playwright.

Director B. J. Sowers chose the cast of 32 from a total of 73 children who auditioned January 19. The cast includes Randy McKay as Mr. Popper, Cathy Wellman as Mrs. Popper and Jenny Berger and Jeff Mullet as their children. Penguins are played by Richard Raterman, Christine Haist, Kim Gearhart, Chris Lindsay, Andy Ross, Sherry Lynn Bowling, Bill Alkire, Kristine Capper, Sallie Jo Schneider, Barry McConnell, Mark Sutton, David Van Hoose, David Halm, Rhonda Van Buskirk, Susan Suhajda and Christine Frosini.

Assistant director for the production is Clara Teegardin who also serves as music director. Members of her all-youth orchestra which will perform before the play and between the acts are: Susan Holveck, Becky Eveland, Sue Duntz, Kathy Fisher, Judy List, Marilyn List, Donna Milburn, Debbie Smith, Linda Fisher, Suzanne Herel, Andrea Downing, Rosanna Schumm, Mary Gay Wood, Kevin Donahue, Bunny Stevens, Gayle Sharrett and Randy McKay.

Becky Sowers, choreographer, is being assisted by Barb Alkire in teaching several dance routines to the penguins.

Production coordinator Pat Stonerock reports that children will also be serving on most behind-the-scenes committees for the first time in such areas as tickets, publicity, props and house.

Shed, Auto Damaged By Fires

Harrison Township Fire Department Authorities extinguished a fire 3:10 p.m. Thursday which caused $1000 damage to a shed at the Paul LaGore residence, Route 2, Ashville.

According to the report taken by Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputy J. Phillip Brown, LaGore's daughter, Melody, 13, was home at the time, when she looked out a rear window and noticed the shed burning.

The fire originated around the area where the electrical wires enter the shed.

Contents in the 8 x 10 building were not damaged.

Faulty wiring was the cause of a car fire, 2:53 p.m. Thursday causing moderate damage to a vehicle owned by John H. Hensel.

According to Hensel, he went inside his home when the horn on the auto began functioning.

Hensel went to check the vehicle when he noticed a fire coming from under the dashboard.

Deputy Nick Franklin took the report.

Shed, Auto Damaged By Fires

Harrison Township Fire Department Authorities extinguished a fire 3:10 p.m. Thursday which caused $1000 damage to a shed at the Paul LaGore residence, Route 2, Ashville.

According to the report taken by Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputy J. Phillip Brown, LaGore's daughter, Melody, 13, was home at the time, when she looked out a rear window and noticed the shed burning.

The fire originated around the area where the electrical wires enter the shed.

Contents in the 8 x 10 building were not damaged.

Faulty wiring was the cause of a car fire, 2:53 p.m. Thursday causing moderate damage to a vehicle owned by John H. Hensel.

According to Hensel, he went inside his home when the horn on the auto began functioning.

Hensel went to check the vehicle when he noticed a fire coming from under the dashboard.

Deputy Nick Franklin took the report.
